What happens when you click join

- When you select the Join option you will be redirected to the appropriate Teams Tenant. Select Yes when the following message appears.

NOTE – You should only be using the web client of Microsoft Teams for OpenHack. It is not suggested to use the desktop client for OpenHack. This will enable you to still use Microsoft Teams desktop for normal business work.

What happens when you click join

- Then select the Join now button to join the session

The Lab Environment

Each OpenHack has 6 logins for your hacker team

To access Azure, you must launch a separate browser using guest mode or incognito and login using the provided credentials

The screenshot shows the OpenHack website's 'Environment Logins' page. It features a table with six rows, each representing a hacker team member. The table columns are 'Display Name', 'User Name', and 'Password'. The user names are all email addresses from the domain 'onmicrosoft.com'. There are also links to the right of each password field. The page has a blue header with the OpenHack logo and navigation links: 'OPEN HACK ENVIRONMENT', 'OVERVIEW', 'OPEN HACK GUIDE', 'PROVIDE FEEDBACK', 'MESSAGES', and 'TEAM CHAT'.

Automated Message May Pop-up

A message may pop-up with important details. If you click OK before taking down this information - don't worry - you can find it in the Messages tab later.

Sharing Logins with Your Teammates

Your teammates may start to join in on the challenge - please share all below logins with your team (see below image). The first person who signed in can access all of these logins.

Use Case Scenario – They will then see the below image to hand out their teammate's credentials.

OPEN HACK ENVIRONMENT				OVERVIEW	OPEN HACK GUIDE	PROVIDE FEEDBACK	MESSAGES	TEAM CHAT
 Environment Logins
Display Name	User Name	Password
Hacker One	hacker1gii@OTAPRD257ops.onmicrosoft.com	*****

Hacker Six	hacker6edw@OTAPRD257ops.onmicrosoft.com	*****

If anyone ever needs to find their username and/or password, they may revert to the OpenHack Environment tab.

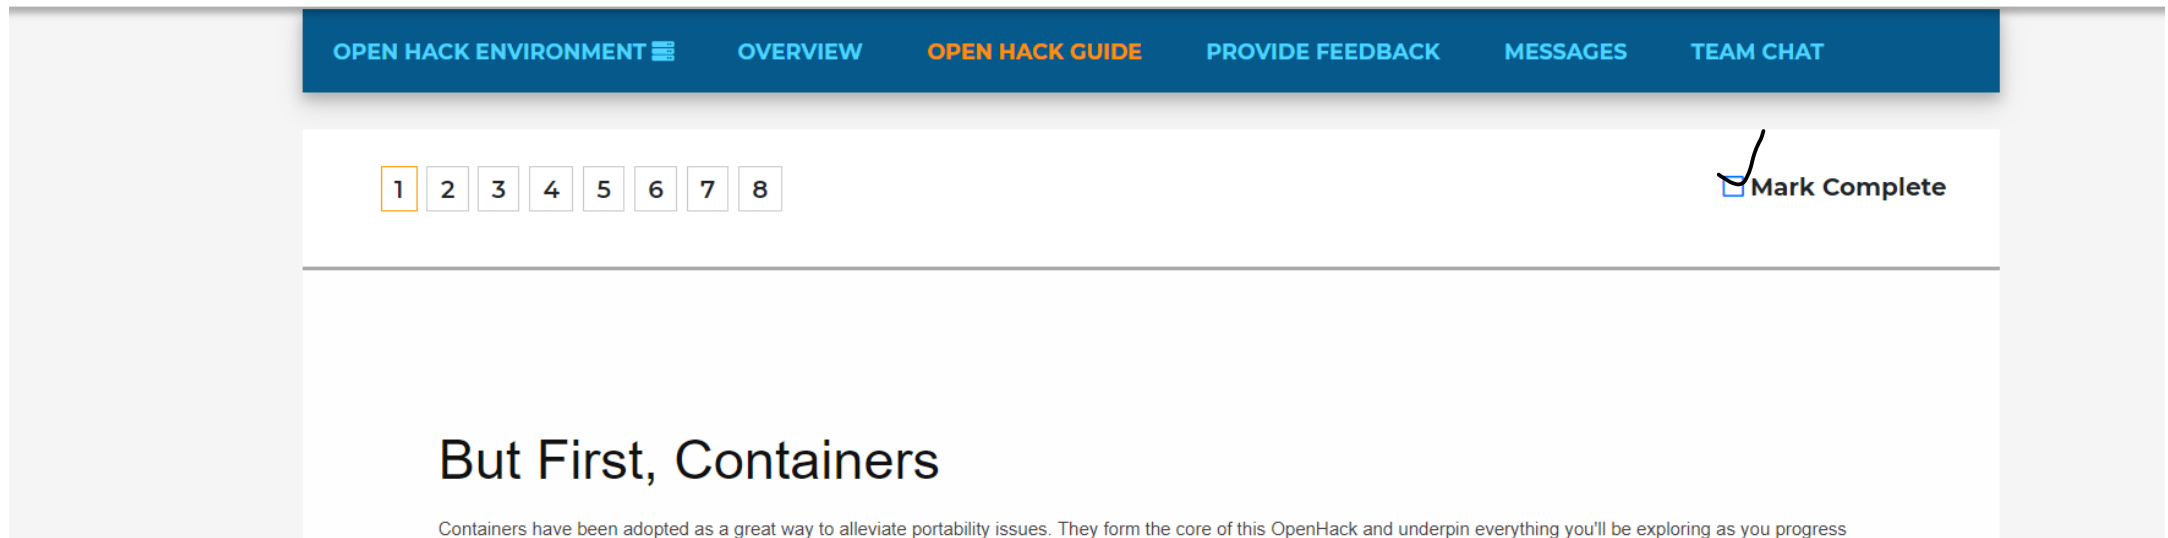

Overview

The Overview tab will give you the full overview of what this OpenHack is going to be about. Please read carefully.

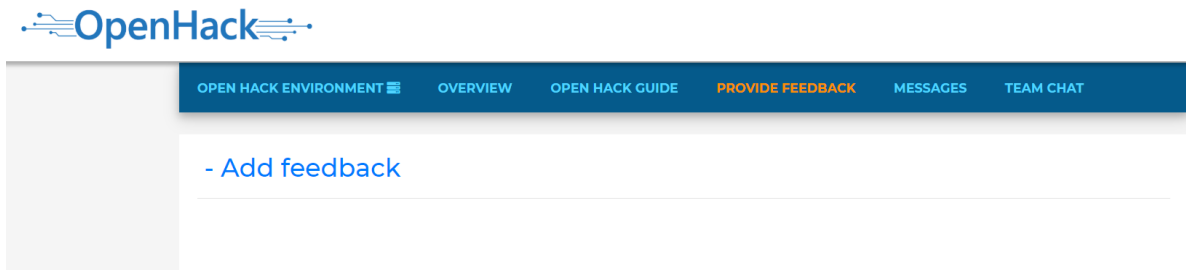

OpenHack Guide

The OpenHack Guide tab is where you will find each challenge for the OpenHack. As you complete each challenge, check the Mark Complete box and wait for your Coach's approval to move on to the next challenge.

Provide Feedback

The Provide Feedback tab will allow you to add feedback as you work through the challenges.

A dialog box will pop-up once you click on Add feedback. Please feel free to share any and all feedback - this is how we continually improve the OpenHacks!

A screenshot of a "Provide Feedback" dialog box. The dialog has a title bar with a close button (X). It contains three sections: "Feedback Type" with a dropdown menu showing "General Feedback"; "Provide Feedback On" with a dropdown menu showing "Challenge 1: Based on a true story"; and a large text area labeled "Feedback". At the bottom right, there are three buttons: "Upload File", "Submit", and "Cancel".

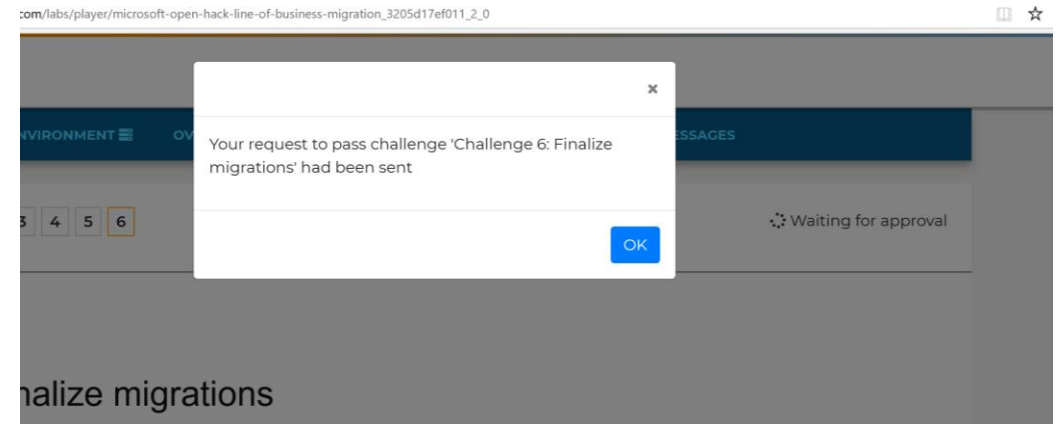

Badges

Receiving a Badge

When you reach a Mark Complete on a sufficient challenge level, you will receive a badge for the OpenHack!

Claiming a Badge

- Once your coach approves you, you will receive your badge (in a pop-up box).
- Click "here" to claim your badge.

Note: clicking "OK" will not allow you to claim your badge. You must click "here". If you accidentally click "OK" or "X-out", don't worry, just ask your coach to re-issue you your badge.
